

MAGICAL TEXTS IN COPTIC—II

By W. E. CRUM

THE further texts here published all belong to the same group as that in the preceding article, are all on leather and are all made legible by infra-red photography. All are by one scribe though his hand varies much in regularity.

Here a clumsy human figure, with extended arms (Plate xxvi, no. 1). Below each arm an animal, facing inwards, while above and to right and left a row of ⲛ's. His right hand appears to hold a seven-leafed (?) branch. Bottom of picture lost. The fragment at present attached below the main sheet is presumably in its right position. On it are legible, after some magical letters, ⲧⲓⲭⲁⲣⲓⲥ ⲛⲧ ⲛⲓⲙ ⲧⲱⲣⲉ ⲗⲁ Ⲓⲓⲑ ⲥⲱⲛⲉ ⲛⲏⲗⲁ ⲛⲧⲱⲟⲩⲩ ⲗⲁ. The lost side of this fragment presumably bore the opening words of the text on the verso.

On the small attached fragment a few letters are visible, but yield no sense. Below them, rough human figures.

РЕСТО.

The favour (χάρις) that was given to the¹ of king Solomon, which (or who) beareth off (?) the virginity and love of women, Chahê,² so that they take their maidenhood³ (-παρθενος) and cast them forth upon the face of the earth¹ I will not² (5) I will not sleep until I put to shame their parents. Kok Tparkokok, he whose³ head is in the abyss, his feet in hell; we are come to thee this day, we put trust⁴ in thee for So-and-so (δεῖνα), that thou mayest give her the food,⁵ that I may become honey in her belly, manna upon her tongue, and that she desire me as it were⁶ the sun (10) and love me as it were the moon and wait for me (lit. hang upon me) like a drop of water hanging upon a jar (κάδος)⁷ and that she be like unto a honey(-bee)⁸ seeking (honey), a bitch prowling, a cat going from house to house, like unto a mare going beneath horses in heat.⁹ Now, now (ἦδη ἦδη), now, quickly (ταχύ), by all the might of hell!

¹ This scribe rarely writes ⲏ for ⲉ, oftener ⲟ for ⲟϥ, not, I think, ⲟ for ⲱ, so that it is hard to recognize the word for which ⲟⲡⲏ is miswritten. I can only suggest ⲱⲡⲉ (Aegyptus, vi, 190, l. 164), which appears to translate ψωλή. But such a misspelling seems unlikely; moreover the genders do not agree. The scribe sometimes leaves words incompleting (e.g. Kropp, M 3, 26, 29, 53, 68); he may have done so here. I have not found Solomon elsewhere in an ἀγωγή.

² A magical word. A rubric?

³ The next words suggest "maidenhead".

(15) Kok Kôcharôtôch Parsobol¹⁰ Anaël. I asked (αἰτεῖν) him and he sent a demon (δαιμόνιον) whose name is Theumatha, whose head is in the abyss, whose feet are in hell,¹¹ the Gehenna of fire. He took fiery prongs, wherewith to smite the head of So-and-so (δεῖνα), until she came to me, to (20) any place that I wish. She shall¹² draw her garment up to her neck and shall call to me saying, "Come hither". By the might of Adaël! Now, now (ἦδη ἦδη), now, quickly, quickly (ταχύ)!

VERSO.

. . . summon] you this day, upon this pot of¹³ water. At the time when ye shall besprinkle yourselves in the dwelling¹⁴ and gather to me the whole race (γένος) of Adam (5) and all the children of Zoe,¹⁵ they bringing me every gift (δῶρον) and every present; they shall all gather unto me, even as a honey-bee upon the mouth of a hive. Ho, ho! I adjure you by your names and your might and your (10) charms (φυλακτήριον) and your places (τόπος) wherein ye are, that ye give me favour (χάρις) and blessing and love, in the dwelling¹⁶ and the assembly and the workshop (ἐργαστήριον),¹⁷ this day and all the days of my life (15) that I am to have. Ho, ho! Quickly, quickly (ταχύ).

Its complete procedure:¹⁸ styra¹⁹ of (sic) opocalamôn,¹⁹ moschatôn,²⁰ blood of a white (λευκός) dove,²¹ ink (μέλαν). Draw the figure (ζώδιον) on the bottom of the new pot; put the²² water therein and dove's blood names, whilst thou at the door of the storehouse (ἀποθήκη)²³ the figure (ζώ.) within the door of the portal of the to thee . . .

² Possibly an angular letter after ϣ; if not, the verb is ⲉⲣⲡⲉ, unknown elsewhere.

³ Read ⲉⲧⲉⲣⲉ-.

⁴ For ⲥⲟⲉⲓⲗⲉ.

⁵ For ⲥⲓⲡⲟⲩⲱⲙ or ⲧⲉⲕⲥ. "thy food".

⁶ ⲟⲩ apparently for (ⲡⲧ)ϣ(ⲉ) ⲡ-; also in 11, 13.

⁷ Cf. Is. xl. 15.

⁸ Unlikely.

⁹ For ⲉⲧⲗⲟⲏⲉ.

¹⁰ Cf. ? ⲃⲉⲗⲗⲉⲃⲟⲩⲗ. For Kok see P.G.M. II, 159.

¹¹ Cf. Griffith Studies, 163, for a comparable phrase.

¹² For ⲉⲥⲁⲥⲱⲕ; next line ⲉⲥⲁⲙⲟⲩⲧⲉ.

¹³ ⲁⲟⲉⲗⲉⲕⲟⲛ and in l. 20. In Kropp, F 50 ⲁⲟⲩⲗⲓⲕⲟⲛ, where it is taken as ⲁⲧ-ϣⲗⲓⲕⲟⲥ. Prof. Preisendanz suggests modern Greek ἀθελκτος "unbewitched".

¹⁴ I.e. at home.

¹⁵ These phrases in B.K.U. 10, 6; ibid. 8, 15; Kropp, F 26, H 52. "Daughters" of Zoe would be expected, but ⲡⲱⲡⲉ is always written.

¹⁶ As above.

¹⁷ Spelt as in Kropp, M 86. May mean "brothel".

¹⁸ As Kropp, M 10. Cf. ποίησις P.G.M. I, 114.

¹⁹ Ὁποκάλαμος.

²⁰ Μοσχάτον, "muscat wine".

²¹ As Kropp, H 113.

²² V. verso l. 2.

VERSO (Plate xxvi, no. 3).

In top register, three standing figures, each with cross in right hand, to the right of them πρηт, the north; beneath them respectively ηηθ, ηηθα, ηηθειαλ. In next register, three similar figures; beneath them αηιογт, ¹¹ κ. In the third register, three more cross-bearing figures; to the right of them прнс, the south. Below a dividing line a column of angel-names ρραφανλ, срагоуηλ, ρасгоуηλ та . ηλ, η . . . , соуринλ, агоуηλ, срафонλ, ρасгоуηλ, μпханλ, ηλ, μαηηλ, which is continued beyond a figure, apparently standing below a cross: ουтринλ, ουгсηλ, ουгранλ, μпханλ, еianλ, аηλ, ηλ, λ. In the upper right corner here, magical letters. After another dividing line, a charm for a woman with disordered menstruation (?).

² Here more intelligible than usual: саѡω at beginning and end, тнроγ in second, егсωшμ ерμσ at third, and perhaps аго in fourth lines.

³ This and next words unclear. One might expect соογρε "egg", instead of сωογρ.

⁴ Cf. Kropp, E 9, 10.

⁵ Recurs, Ann. 27, 64. Cf. Kropp, III, § 51 ff.

⁶ Taking the first ππιωт as superfluous.

⁷ "Of" or "for the church"?

⁸ Reading uncertain.

⁹ "The trumpet" cannot be read, though probably intended.

¹⁰ Perhaps continued on another piece, not preserved; or abruptly broken off owing merely to the usual carelessness of "magical" scribes.

¹¹ Recurs in Kropp, M 4.

² Or possibly for ἄσφαλος; cf. Kropp, K 77. Acacia flower: Pap. Méd. p. 172.

⁶ Cf. Kropp, D 144 (=B.M. Cat., p. 420 b), where ΕΑ should correspond to ΡΑ here.

⁷ Or ΤΙΣ. Cf. ΤΙΣ in the charm preceding. See Epiphanius I, 246.

⁸ For ΔΖ read ?ΑΤ.

⁹ ΖΟΥΡΙΤ in Kropp, M 2, 4. Equivalent there to δεκανός, ibid. 19. I cannot translate the following words.

The last but two ? for ΠΤΑΥΗΟΥΚΥ.

¹⁰ Cf. ? Σαβρωθ, P.G.M. I, 14, though this seems to be but a variant of Σαβωθ.

¹¹ A “Prayer of Elias” in Stegemann, Kopt. Zaubertexte (1934), 73. The prayer here may consist of the magical signs only, or it may include the lines following, which appear to be mainly deformed Greek with a few Coptic words. The Prayer mentioned in Budge, Misc. 506 refers merely to 1 Kings xvii. 1, Luke iv. 25.

D. (no. as last).

Another piece, numbered and framed with the preceding and measuring $5\frac{1}{4} \times 3\frac{1}{4}$ in., has on one side $\alpha\theta\alpha \alpha\theta\alpha \alpha\theta\alpha\rho\iota\mu \pi\epsilon\delta\alpha\lambda \pi\alpha\tau\alpha\gamma\omicron\pi \mid \pi\rho\eta\tau \pi\alpha\omicron\gamma\omega\psi$, Atha, Atha, Atharim. The eye shall tell (?),¹ the heart shall desire; then two cross-like signs, then $\theta\mu\iota$, followed by two more such signs and, after a dividing line, $\iota\theta \pi\psi\omicron\rho\epsilon\sigma\iota$. After which two more lines of signs, ending with $\chi\theta\eta$. The other side is blank.

The above group of manuscripts, together with Fr. Kropp's M, may be compared with the supposed wizard's library from the Fayyûm, now in Berlin.² But whereas these—a much larger number—are written by a variety of hands,³ our five are all the work of one scribe. In date the two groups lie perhaps not far apart; the fact that, among the Berlin texts, some were written down in (early) Muslim days,⁴ while in ours there is no evidence of that, need not separate chronologically the periods at which the originals were composed. The present series is, on the whole, the less interesting: the ancient gods, who reappear in several of the Berlin texts,⁵ are absent from ours; the persons here named are exclusively biblical, or, if one includes the angel-names, rabbinical. It will further be noticed that none of ours (nor any of the Berlin texts) was intended for the use of a particular individual, whereas in another series of magical pieces—Kropp's E to J—three were written for one and the same person.⁶

² B.K.U., I, no. 1 ff.

³ Aeg. Z., xxxiii, 44.

⁴ Op. cit. 43.

⁵ And elsewhere, e.g. that published by Lange in Griffith Studies, 162, and in a highly interesting text in the Michigan collection.

⁶ Kropp, I, p. xi. Again Schiller's MS. (Journ. Soc. Or. Res., 1928) and Stegemann's no. 45 are probably by the same scribe, but name no individual.

PS. In the previous article, p. 53, l. 8, before "like", insert "and set love of me in the breast of So-and-so, the daughter of So-and-so".
