PREFACE

THE following texts from papyri and ostraca are published for the first time, with the exception of no. 49, whereof a photograph was given by F. Rossi, no. 53 printed by Pleyte and Boeser, no. 115 reproduced in photograph in the Archaiologikê Ephêmeris, 1915 and no. 120 in the Catalogue of the Coptic Museum. Professor Farina was so good as to send me a much better photograph of the first of these, the late Dr. Boeser sent one of the second, Dr. Kapsomenos of the Athens Museum kindly collated certain places in the third, while Mr. Abd el-Masih sent a photograph of the last. To these gentlemen I am greatly indebted, as I am also to the Keepers of other collections, who have allowed me the use of their material, and further to Dr. A. H. Gardiner, Professor G. Jéquier, Major Gayer Anderson (no. 52) and the Rev. W. C. Hall (no. 36), who put texts in their possession at my disposal. No. 128 is taken from a photograph given me in 1931 by the late Professor Carl Schmidt. The Bodleian ostraca have mostly been acquired through Mr. N. de G. Davies.

I have this time attempted in every case a translation, but mostly with poor success. Coptic documents, whether contracts or letters, even when flawlessly preserved, seem fated to remain here and there obscure. If that is true of Sa'idic texts, far more is it so of those in Fayyûmic, whereof nos. 114, 115, 116, 128 are fine examples. I have failed to interpret satisfactorily any one of these ; indeed I am often uncertain still how the words are to be divided.

Texts to which it may be worth drawing attention are : no. 3 theological, yet to be identified ; no. 5 our longest piece ; no. 6 two ecclesiastical texts ; nos. 8 ff. so-called " protective promises " (v. also 64, 75, 82, 106) ; nos. 37-43 episcopal letters ; no. 44 a protest of orthodoxy ; no. 45 a disciplinary letter ; no. 46 and the other fine papyri of that series (BMEA) came from the Hay collection in the early nineteenth century ; no. 47 probably the oldest manuscript here included ; nos. 50, 51 good Jême texts ; no. 67 datable as referring to the Persian invaders ; no. 76 naming Pesenthius of Koptos ; no. 30 with a notable allusion to a Pachomian monastery at that town ; nos. 114, 115, 116 the Fayyûmic letters above mentioned ; nos. 118, 119, 120 unusually interesting lists.

The abbreviations are those used in my Coptic Dictionary, with the following in addition :

- Bd = Bodleian Library, Oxford.
- Brl = Bristol Museum and Art Gallery.
- Dict = Crum, A Coptic Dictionary.
- Gar = in the possession of Dr. A. H. Gardiner.
- Jéq = in the possession of Professor G. Jéquier.
- L = Limestone.
- P = Pottery.
- Pap = Papyrus.
- UC = University College, London.

Five dots (.) in the translations represent a relatively long gap, three (. . .) a shorter one ; they imply no precise length. At beginning or end of a line the amount lost is mostly unknown.

LITERARY TEXTS

- 1. UC 13. P. Ligatured hand. Psalm xxx, 2-8, first in Greek, then in Sa'idic. A few orthographic lapses (ll. 5, 7, 8, 13). Copt. v. 3b omitted ; vv. 5, 6 pjoeis to be noted.
- 2. Bd 472. L. Uncials. A prayer.
“ . . . God eternal, king of kings, hearken unto our prayer and our entreaty. May our voice come unto Thee ; may our repentance attain unto Thy throne ; may the lifting up of our hands come into Thy presence. Repel us not from Thy presence because of our sins ; put us not to shame because of our iniquities. Make haste and incline Thine ear unto us in Thy manifold mercy and Thine abundant goodness. May we come before Thee openly. As Thou hast made us to be partakers of Thy body and Thy blood, revealed upon earth, (vo) so may we partake . . . ”
- 3. Bd 471. P. From a controversial Epistle or Dialogue.
“ Wherefore hath it (the soul) need of progress (προκοπή), as the body hath need of time, till it be confirmed (πήσσειν) and girt and steadfast and grow and get a beard and be able to work ? For (καὶ γάρ) the soul for its part was created by God with the body, [. . . .] of the body is small. So it is with the soul : it is small. It likewise hath need of time, till it (can) get breath and [see ?] and hear and taste and speak and discern (διάκρισις) between each of these. If [the soul exis]ted before the body, as thou sayest, it is not meet [that it should be sub]ject (ὑποκείσθαι) unto time (χρ.) or suffering (πάθος) like the body [. . . .] shall bring forth the lesser, it must needs have spoken and discerned (διακρίνειν) [good and] evil. But soul and body are seen to be [. . . .], existing together, increasing (αὐξάνειν) together, [. . . .] hindrance, whilst thou utterest all these follies [. . . .], turning thyself away from the [true] knowledge. . . . ”
- 4. UC 5. P. From a Dialogue between a bishop and a pagan.
“ The pagan (ἑλληγ) said, ‘ [. . . .] this word, which [. . . .] I did not make peace [. . . .] I was not content. They [. . . .], he saying [. . . .] ’ The bishop said, ‘ [. . . .] the word which [. . . .] after the sickness had come [. . . .] peace (?) with the Devil [. . . .] in his sickness (?) 5. BM Cat. 445 (cf. Pl. I). Pap. From Edfu. Joint declaration (κοινή ὁμολογία) by Victor and Herai, in favour of their daughter Terêt. On recto a Greek text. A.D. 620 ±.

" . . . days of [death] shall belong unto Terêt our daughter and [her] daughter, whether house or court or [thing of bron]ze or iron or any chattel at all, from a respected thing to the humblest. And there shall no man, whether stranger or (5) child or kinsman, take aught of ours, after our death-days, save T. and her daughter. And according as we have already said, there shall no man inherit of us save T. and her daughter; because we found not any man in our trouble save T., of whom we have already written, who tended us in our sickness and our feebleness. And Zacharia shall not take aught of ours, whether (10) house or court or any thing of ours; because his father¹ brought naught in to me, Erai, neither hath Z. himself shown any kindness toward us, but so soon as we had reared him and he was come to full age (ἡλικία), he departed and nourished others with what he had stolen behind our backs, whilst we were feeble and knew not. Since we have not (15) kinsfolk (κατασάρξ), we have drawn up this declaration (ὁμολογία) one with another, for an assurance unto ourselves and a security (ἀσφάλεια) unto T. our daughter and her daughter. There shall no man of ours nor stranger be able to dispute (ἀντιλέγειν) it and we for our part shall not be able to repent (μεταμέλεισθαι) and to draw up another declaration (ὁμ.), neither shall we make a statement (lit. give φωνή) on our death-days. And if we shall wish and write another declaration or shall make (20) a statement, they shall be invalid (ἄκυρος) and this present declaration shall have its authority in every place wherein it may be displayed (ἐμφανίζειν). We swear by God Almighty and the weal of our lords the kings that we will not transgress (παραβαίνειν) this declaration. Whoso shall dispute (ἀντιλέγειν) it or shall transgress (παραβ.) it, firstly he shall be in peril (κίνδυνος) of the oath (ὄρκος)²; thereafter he shall pay 12 solidi (δλοκόττινος) (25) as fine (πρόστιμον). And further we declare (ὁμολογεῖν) this: Z. shall neither take nor give from us, for we found him not in our trouble; but T. and her daughter shall inherit (κληρονομεῖν) from us, from a respected thing to the humblest, after our death, and she shall bury us and shall pay our charges (ἀνάλωμα) and give our offering (προσφορά), like every Christian. For an [assurance] unto us and our daughter T. we have drawn up this joint declaration (κοινή ὁμ.) . . . .. And we have been questioned as to all these (things) and have declared (ὁμ.) them.

" I, Victor, the son of Daniel, and his wife, Heraei, the daughter of Zacharia, who have already written, we assent (στοιχεῖν) to this joint declaration (κ.δ.) and everything that is written therein. I, Andrew, the son of Epiphanius, they requested (αἰτεῖν) me and I wrote for them, [for] they know (νοεῖν) not to write. I, Dios, the physician (ιατρός), the son of Moses, I am witness (μάρτυρος) to this declaration at the request of them that drew it up. I, Joannakis (-cius), the son of Martin, I am witness (μ.) (35) to this declaration at the request of them that drew it up. I, Dios, the son of Kōstos (Constans?),³ humblest lector (ἀναγνώστης), I am witness to this declaration [at the request] of them that drew it up. By me, Daniel, this declaration was made."

" In the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost. I, John and Shenoute my brother, I write unto my father Apa Zacharias and our father Apa Jacob and Apa Theodore and all the brethren according to their names, (saying,) since I myself have desired in my heart's desire, together with my brother, not by constraint, but by my own decision, and am come and have requested our father Apa Zacharia and Apa Jacob, that (5) their pity might reach me and my brother, so that we might be worthy to take part (μετέχευ) in prayer with them¹; but (λοιπόν) they desired to require a declaration (ὁμολογία) at our hands, namely, that we will walk in the ordinance (ἐντολή), after the manner of all the brethren that walk in obedience (ὑποταγή), (and) that we will go nowhere without asking (leave),² nor will (do) aught whereat your heart should be pained, beyond (contrary to παρά) all the brethren. If I shall commit a fault (lit. defile self)³ and do aught whereat your heart should be pained, ye it is that command and (may) cast me forth. And further, I will not (10) let any⁴ in unto me, whereat your heart should be pained. I, Theodore, this humblest one, I am witness to everything written therein. I, Ouanophrius, sim. I, Charis,⁵ sim. I, John, this humblest one, who have already written this declaration (ὁμ.) with my own hand, I assent (στοιχεῖν) thereunto, according as it is written."

I, John the monk, he that dwelleth in the Mount of Jême,² under obedience to our father, Apa Kerê (Cyrus) and Apa Theodore, since at this time (i.e. recently) I fell from [. . . .] of the ordinances (ἐντολή), according to (πρός) the canon (καν.) of our fathers, having brought a man in to my dwelling without asking (leave) of the elders according to the canon, (5) whereupon (ἐπιτιμία) (on me?), namely (ἡγουν) to cast (me) forth, I besought thy paternity and thou, my father, Apa Karire and Apa Theodore, didst desire to inflict the punishment certain reliable ³ elder brethren that had besought you for us and you did for God's sake and your pity reached me and ye received me unto yourselves once more ; so now I declare (ὁμολογεῖν), writing with mine own hand, (saying,) From this day, which is the 18th of the month Mesorê (10) of this 6th year, if the canon of our fathers catch me, or if I suffer (to enter) any ⁴ strange (ἀλλότριος) man that is not in communion (κοινωνία) with me nor is under your obedience (ὑποταγή), if I do this, ye shall cast me forth, without any repentance (μετάνοια) or forgiveness. "Elisaius 6. The man of Sehbôn¹ 1. For the of (the) linen.² The 3. (5) Severa³ for the and ours (?). Give it unto the priest (πρεσβ.) Job, from Mark, this humblest one. Papnoute of . . ."

² So in Ep 284. Hboos ? 'garments'; hêne ? the material for them (cf. CO 465).

³ Not elsewhere in Coptic texts.

127. UC 38. P. List of metal objects, with witnesses thereto.

". . .] of (to ?) Ananias, which are these . [. . .] pans, 4 vessels, [. . .] bronze dishes (λακάνη), [. . . .] pan (? κούκουμα),¹ a bronze jar (κάδος), (5) [. . . .] bronze. I, Philotheus, [am witnes]s.² I, Epiphanius, [am witness.] I, Kôlthe, [deac]on of (the church of) St (ἅγιος) George,³ [I wrote] this list (γνώσις) with my hand [and am witness]."

² Or ? 'assent' (στοιχεῖν), if this is the author.

³ Cf. no. 40.

128. C Schmidt. P. List of fields. From the Fayyûm.

"The field of Bellabok,¹ a 5½ ¹/₁₂ measures,² on (?) the field of Iahnouti. The field of Prammi of Pirkahra, (5) a half thirty.³ The little⁴ fields of Thaol of Pirkahra. Little fields below Piahkoubi, that is the field of Pieou the black. The side of . . (10) . . . The little fields of Temšanti."

³ The relation of 'half' and 'thirty' and whether the foregoing words are indeed names remains—like much else in this text—uncertain.

⁴ The usual meanings of apê seem unsuitable.

129. BMEA 10581. Pap. List of persons, some with Arab names.

"With God. The *melke*¹ Susinnius, son (ύός) of Cosma and Ali, son of Ouelit (Walid) and . et, son of Mark. The melke Hômise, the watchman. (5) The melke Hatit (Hadîd), the ,² son of the son of Apoulagar.³ The melke, son of Alê (Ali) of the⁴"

¹ Doubtless a derivate of mlk, but which ? Milki 'Melkite' seems unlikely. Mr. Guest suggests milki, 'landowner, farmer.'

² Cf. no. 6.

³ Not recognised.

⁴ A place ? Tespahmi. In this line father's name lacking.

130. UC 33. P. Unintelligible. Not Coptic ?
