DOXOLOGIES IN THE COPTIC CHURCH

EDITED BOHAIRIC DOXOLOGIES

BY

Y. 'ABD AL-MASÎḤ.

In my previous article which dealt with the unedited Ṣa'idic Doxologies, to which the reader is referred, I pointed out that sometimes a Doxology is identical with a Ṭarḥ and sometimes with a section of a Theotokion ⁽¹⁾.

In order to bring to the notice of scholars the Doxologies of the Coptic Church and to facilitate the task of those who may wish to identify Doxologies from among the numerous fragments of Coptic hymns which are to be found in the various great libraries of the world, I propose to set forth the Bohairic Doxologies in the same manner as that in which Dr. O. H. E. Burmester treated the Ṭurūḥāt of the Coptic Church ⁽²⁾.

The text of the Doxologies given in the following pages is taken from the two well known publications al-Abṣalmūdiyat as-Sanawiyat al-Muqaddasah ⁽³⁾ (الإبصموديه السنويه المقدسه) which contains most of the Doxologies sung to the air Batos and also a few sung to the air of Adam, and The Book of the Holy Laudations ⁽⁴⁾ (كتاب التماجيد المقدسه) which contains most of the Doxologies that are sung to the air Adam. In addition to these publications, Doxologies are also to be found in the 'ΠΙΧΩΜ ΝΤΕΝΙΘΕΟΤΟΚΙΑ ΝΕΜ ΚΑΤΑ ΤΑΣΙΣ ΝΤΕΠΙΑΒΟΤ

Kitāb Dallāl wa-Tarāb Ġum'at al-Ālām wa-'Īd al-Fiṣḥ al-Maḡīd (Indicator and Ordo of Holy Week and the Glorious Feast of Easter), (Cairo, 1920).

The initial and final stanzas of these Doxologies are given together with a translation, and the number of verses of each Doxology is indicated.

The Greek words in the Coptic text are printed in italics.

My best thanks are due to my friend, Dr. Burmester, for his kind suggestions.
